Native wildflowers are making a return to the old growth forest at the Arboretum! With the gift of your time and physical effort, you can leave your mark on the natural world, which will be appreciated for generations.

Since August of 2015, volunteers from the Penn State community and beyond contributed over a thousand hours to the removal of invasive plants from Hartley Wood, as well as planting native trees, shrubs, and wildflowers.

This fall, please join us in continuing this work in a popular natural area of The Arboretum at Penn State!

FALL 2016 WORK DATES

Work sessions will be held 9am-12pm and 2pm-5pm on the dates at left.

Maximum 30 volunteers per session.

Alternative dates and times may be set by appointment.
